sessions rather than side lectures. He encouraged

The resource person believed in interactive sessions rather than side lectures. He encouraged the participants/students to ask questions.

Questions relating to the difference between the National Biodiversity Authority, and State Biodiversity Authority, effects of biopiracy in a country, measures to control biopiracy, snatching the traditional knowledge of farmers by MNCS, positive development in rural and semi-urban areas that are lacking behind safeguarding biodiversity, views on incentives for people bringing traditional knowledge into light, how awareness can be created... questions have been asked by the participants and the person.

According to the resource person, once a person makes an application, it automatically prevents piracy. Prevention of biopiracy is only possible by granting permission. Unfortunately, this is the area in which we fail. It is not the MNCS that take up our knowledge but we give away our knowledge
